

Extender

Extending your home is a project that 10,000s of people take on each year but very few manage to achieve with total success. Either costs overrun, building details get missed, or the overall design disappoints. A visit to the Homebuilding & Renovating Show is a good way to ensure your home transformation project gets off on the right track.

Photograph: iStock

1

One of the major issues facing home extenders is the situation around planning permission. So make sure you don't miss our seminar with Sally Tagg on Planning Permission: How to find your way through the planning maze (every day at 11:00am in the Seminar Theatre) to see how it affects your particular project.

2

The next step, of course, is to establish how you're going to get the extension built. There are many different routes, but most people will use a local builder. Get some honest guidance on your project from a builder, at the Advice Centre.

3

Now down to the detail. Get some ideas of the finished products that you might want to aim for in your extension. Check out the kitchens, doors & windows and flooring suppliers at the show.

Use the checklist on the next page for exhibitor's stand numbers

Show Trails

4

Make sure you book a free consultation with one of our professional designers and builders to receive bespoke advice on your scheme at the Advice Centre.

5

Also, for those looking for design inspiration, make sure you come along to Michael Holmes' seminar on extension design ideas at 11:30am each day in the Seminar Theatre.

Check out the show guide for a list of all exhibitors

Photograph: Clive Doyle

My trail checklist

- Seminar Theatre
Planning Permission: How to find your way through the planning maze 11:00am – 11:30am
- Advice Centre Free 15 minute consultation with a builder or architect
- Seminar Theatre Extension design ideas: The fundamentals of successful extensions and renovations 11:30am - 12:00pm

HALF-PRICE subscriptions

Get yours today at homebuilding.co.uk/trail or at the show

#HBRShow17

